CHAIRPERSON'S REPORT

This report focuses on the 2002/2003 year. However, due to the delay in finalising this report there will be some mention of important matters which will have an impact on the Service in the 2003/2004 year and beyond.

VALS has again delivered a range of services to the Koorie community and increased the number of services provided in key areas.

Last year VALS initiated over 6000 new matters in the criminal, civil and family law areas. The number of criminal matters increased significantly as did the family law matters. VALS capacity to do Family law matters was boosted by the secondment of a Family law solicitor from Victoria Legal Aid. This increased the personnel in the Family Law section to three.

VALS has continued to participate in a range of forums and networks with the aim of improving the quality of justice that Indigenous peoples enjoy. The State Government supported Aboriginal Justice Plan continues to evolve and VALS is actively involved at a State and regional level. Initiatives such as the Koorie Court and the funding of a Community Justice project at VALS are two examples of successful initiatives.

Unlike most other Australian States, Victoria still has not decriminalised Public Drunkenness and VALS continues to pursue this change. In the area of Chroming legislation VALS was one of a number of organisations making submissions that criminalising Chroming would be counterproductive. Although police powers to search, refer to a support service and take an affected person to a safe place were legislated for, Chroming was not criminalised.

VALS has employed an Indigenous Womens' Justice Forum Project worker to improve information and service provision to Indigenous women. This was funded with Community Initiatives Program money via the Aboriginal Justice Plan.

VALS has established a Web site which can be found at www.vals.org.au

A report compiled by VALS research officers aimed at improving diversion and police cautioning of juveniles was completed and presented to a meeting of the Aboriginal Justice Forum and this is likely to lead to the establishment of some pilot projects at various locations in the State.

In spite of these achievements, the future of the service is now in doubt.

Last year, my Annual Report included the following statement:

“We note with great interest the recently published ATSIC - Office of Evaluation Report – ‘Evaluation of the Legal and Preventative Services Program’ which states in part – “ATSIC needs to seriously address the high workloads, staff turnover and dissatisfaction of ATSILS staff with their working conditions and remuneration”.

The report compared Aboriginal Legal Service costs with Legal Aid costs and stated that if Legal Aid provided a similar service it would cost $25,605,598 more than the present Aboriginal Legal Services budget of $38 million. The report forcefully argues that the ATSIC administrative arms enthusiasm for an expansion of tendering is not supported by the findings of the report.

With the release of the ATSSIS Exposure Draft document on 4th March 2004, it is now clear that ATSSIS has decided to significantly down size and restrict what Aboriginal Legal Services are funded to do. It is also clear that ATSSIS want to encourage non-Indigenous Providers to deliver these services.

VALS will be arguing that this will radically redefine and change Aboriginal Legal Services. Aboriginal Legal Services will no longer play the primary role in legal service provision that they presently do but instead become a secondary service more limited in scope than a private legal firm. These changes will not create a more effective legal service system for Aboriginal peoples they will at best force Aboriginal peoples to use already overstretched mainstream services and force the State Governments to fund what is clearly a Commonwealth Government responsibility. The changes will represent the Commonwealth Government washing their hands of the obligations which the Australian people gave them in the 1967 referendum to provide services to Aboriginal peoples.

VALS is seeking support to convince the government to adopt more efficient ways to increase service effectiveness and accountability.

CLIENT SERVICE OFFICERS

The unit is staffed by ten Client Service Officers, six of whom are based in non metro offices and the other four staff at the Fitzroy office.

The Metropolitan Client Service Officer staff are on a on-call roster and respond to notifications from Victoria Police (via Records Services Branch) of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander persons detained in custody.

In total more than 70% of VALS Client Service Officer work is delivered to rural based clients.

During the year several of the Client Service Officers were involved in Regional Aboriginal Justice Advisory Committees around Victoria. Client Service Officers are to be congratulated for their hard work during a challenging year.

LEGAL PRACTICE REPORT

Staff

Criminal Practice

During the financial year June 2002 to June 2003 we enjoyed temporary stability in the staff of the criminal practice. However, that has not continued into the early part of 2004, and we have now seen the departure of 3 solicitors: Kimberley Bott, Justin Wheelahan and Tim Whitehead.

We employed Francis Hill to fill the Bairnsdale position, and has settled in well.

We have also appointed staff to fill the vacancies mentioned above.

The present criminal lawyers are:

1. Graeme Davis
2. Urfa Masood
3. Samantha Brown
4. Jillian Prior
5. John Sutton
6. David Podger (commencing 5 April 2004)

The departure of a number of staff disrupts service generally, and particularly service to regions, where local knowledge is a valuable commodity.

It is envisaged that Urfa Masood will continue to handle West Gippsland (Moe); Graeme Davis will be responsible for Swan Hill; Samantha Brown will take over the Hume Region; Jillian Prior will be responsible for the Murray River (Mildura and Robinvale region); and John Sutton will handle the Western District.

Francis Hill remains in the Bairnsdale office.

The metropolitan courts are shared by all staff.

In the past I have handled the majority of serious indictable cases. These files are now conducted by all staff, under my supervision.

It is a continuing challenge for the Executive Officer to balance casework responsibility and administrative responsibility. That challenge is not lessened by the turnover of staff, and the difficulty in attracting experienced replacements.

The staff in the family practice and the civil practice remain unchanged.

Family Practice

1. Lorne Clements
2. Denis Barry
3. Leah Billeam

We are fortunate to continue to receive the support of Victoria Legal Aid through the secondment of Leah to the family law section.

Civil Practice

Michel Zaccaro remains the civil solicitor.

Key Developments and Achievements

Koorie Court

Koorie Court has operated in Shepparton for approximately 2 years, for over a year at Broadmeadows, and recently commenced in the Warrnambool region.

Significant Cases

VALS successfully reviewed the decision of a Magistrate who found that chroming constituted the criminal offence of offensive behaviour. This case involved a young person. VALS decided to challenge the decision because we believed the decision was wrong in law, and because it was contrary to the intention of proposed legislation to address the problem of young people abusing volatile substances without making it a criminal offence.

We also proceeded with an application to the High Court for special leave to appeal. This matter concerned the factors that should be taken into account in sentencing Aboriginal offenders, and in particular childhood separation from family, childhood sexual abuse and whether the significance of Aboriginality was less for urban Aboriginals, as seemed to be suggested by the majority in the Court of Appeal. Disappointingly, this application was unsuccessful. However, the minority judgement of Eames J in the Court of Appeal, which contains a comprehensive review of factors to be taken into account in sentencing Aboriginals has received widespread acceptance in the County Court and Supreme Court.

VALS has participated in the Volatile Substances Abuse Protocols Advisory Committee. The committee is developing protocols for the introduction of legislation to address the problem of volatile substance abuse by young people.

RESEARCH, PLANNING AND DEVELOPMENT UNIT

Including the Community Justice project and Indigenous Women's Justice Forum project

Introduction

Recent policy proposals (March 2004) from the Commonwealth Government to tender out funds previously allocated to Aboriginal Legal Services will mean that non Indigenous organisations may in future be contracted to provide these services. The tender proposal does not include prevention and education, policy, research or test cases. Hence much of the work of this unit would no longer be funded in future if the tendering proposals proceed in their present form.

In the last financial year this unit managed two projects funded by the State Government to supplement and extend work done with Indigenous communities. Funding of $150,000 was obtained for these projects. The unit in 2001-2002 made a proposal which resulted in a successful secondment agreement involving the Commonwealth Attorney General's Department and Victoria Legal Aid. This provides one additional full time lawyer to the service and has proven a highly successful arrangement in 2002-2003. The tendering policies being embraced by the Commonwealth Government ignore the "value adding" and leverage that a wholistic Aboriginal Legal Service can provide. It is unfortunate for the Indigenous community that the Commonwealth Government have developed a tender policy which ignores the value of this work and the many other valuable aspects of Aboriginal Legal Services.

The Research Planning and Development Unit provides information, advice, referral and support and advocates for improved laws, legal system operation, diversion and prevention strategies. Additionally the Unit has a number of organisational support roles in relation to preparation of funding submissions, library, information technology and file management.

Highlights of the 2002-2003 year

The Unit has continued to work with Koorie communities via its community justice project work, Indigenous Women's Justice Forum project and liaison with VALS Client Service officers and legal staff.

It has:

- ✓ Employed an Indigenous Women's Justice Forum project worker
- ✓ Held launches of the Be Strong Use Your Rights kit in the metropolitan area and in Gippsland
- ✓ Participated in the Department of Justice's justice plan workshop
- ✓ Obtained a legal opinion about the capacity of Client Service Officers to play the role of Independent third person in police interviews of juveniles
- ✓ Secured funding from the Department of Justice for the Community Justice project
- ✓ Provided a research report on improvements to diversion and police cautioning of juveniles to the Aboriginal Justice Forum (Discussions are continuing about developing a pilot project)
- ✓ Co-hosted with the Victorian Council of Social Services a public forum, "Missing Stories in the Tough on Crime Debate" (Speakers were Alf Bamblett, Aboriginal Justice Advisory Committee and Nick Cowdrey Director of Public Prosecutions NSW)
- ✓ Research about and Meeting with the Law Reform Commission of Victoria about their Defences to Homicide Review
- ✓ Made a submission to the State Government about the establishment of a Sentencing Council
- ✓ Made a submission to the Commonwealth Government about proposed changes to the Human Rights and Equal Opportunity Commission
- ✓ Finalised content for the VALS web site (www.vals.org.au)
- ✓ Made a submission to ATSSIS about proposed changes to the funding formula that applies to the state by state allocation of funds to Aboriginal Legal Services
- ✓ Oversee new computers and other I.T. improvements
- ✓ Further submissions about the Community Justice Program review and the Police Aboriginal Issues Unit policy review
- ✓ Worked more closely with the Ombudsman's Office, Consumer Affairs Department Indigenous Issues Unit and Equal Opportunity Commission

Key Tasks of the Unit

- Provide information to the CEO and Board about government policy and programs
- Provide information to the public, including media and human service organisations about VALS and issues affecting Koories
- Provide Community Legal Education to Koorie community members
- Do research about policy changes and issues affecting the Koorie community
- Record details of all client matters; create files and maintain and improve the VALS data base.
- Coordinate information technology planning and maintenance
- Library maintenance including updating all legal loose leaf systems
- Represent the service at meetings with government departments and other organisations
- Contribute to the services ongoing activities and development via assistance with funding submissions and training issues.
- Provide quarterly reports to ATSIC on the service's activities.

Staff

Thanks to all the staff who worked in the Unit. Teresa Hofilena has been at VALS for seven years and coordinates the filing and data entry area. She continues to deal with an ever increasing volume of files. In 2002-2003 plans to destroy old files came to fruition.

Thanks also to Catie Pitman who has continued to provide strong support and critical thought to the development of the Community Justice Project. Thanks to departing staff Jan Muir and Sharon Firebrace for their hard work and best wishes to them in their new positions.

Welcome to Melissa Morgan, the Indigenous Women's Justice project worker and Kate Hairsine who commenced at VALS in October 2002 as the Research Officer. Thanks also to Emma Moss who has been a regular volunteer assisting with research tasks and recently joined the salaried staff in a part time capacity.

Indigenous Women's Justice Forum

This forum was established by the Community Justice workers in April 2001. The forum secured a Community Initiatives grant from the Regional Aboriginal Justice forum. Due to difficulties in recruiting a project worker the project was not fully operational until April 2003. The quarterly forum provides a regular opportunity for Indigenous women and some key mainstream services to discuss policy issues, government proposals and hear from guest speakers.

Statistics

Last year VALS opened more than 6000 new matters. A "matter" could involve one or more charges that occurred at the same time. The number of criminal law matters increased significantly as did the number of Family law matters. Family law includes child protection cases. Delays in recruiting new staff meant that the number of Family Law matters commenced in 2001-2002 dropped from 168 to 90. In 2002-2003 with positions filled including the new seconded position from Legal Aid VALS opened 284 new family law matters.

Male-Female work balance

The percentage of lawyer time spent on matters involving female clients was 37%.

Although the number of new matters opened for female clients is 22% the time spent by lawyers is higher than this as more than 50% of all the civil and family law relates to female clients and these civil and family matters often involve multiple hearings and continue over many months.

The percentage of appeals for criminal matters which were successful was 78%.

FINANCE & CORPORATE SERVICES UNIT

The Corporate & Financial Services Unit is responsible for maintaining the financial framework and structure which supports all operational areas of the organisation. This involves ensuring that VALS meets its statutory obligations and maintains a reliable system of internal controls which is designed to reasonably ensure that all transactions are authorised in accordance with approved management procedures, that all transactions are properly recorded and that the assets of the Co-operative are safeguarded.

VALS principal cost is staff salaries, with other major expenses being outside briefs, motor vehicle running, telephone and travel. Taken together these expenses account for 98% of the recurrent funding provided to VALS by ATSSIS in 2002/03. A full analysis of Income and Expenditure is provided in the Annual Financial Statements.

Reports are provided by means of monthly Financial Reports to the Board of Directors, half yearly reports to ATSSIS and Annual Reports to Members. Each one is provided with varying analysis according to their needs and statutory obligations.

The Service is primarily funded by ATSSIS by means of quarterly grant payments in advance. Payments are made only if satisfactory Financial Reports have been submitted in accordance with VALS contractual agreement with ATSSIS. Tied to ATSSIS grants, there are additional terms and conditions that require VALS to undertake a range of accountability procedures.

The Commonwealth Government provides funding to VALS for Emergency Relief to those in need of financial or food assistance. Assistance is only provided after an assessment of each application.

There has been no change in accounting procedures during the year.

VALS budgets for break-even endeavours to end of the year just under budget in order to protect the capital base of the organisation and to ensure that we have sufficient funds to meet the needs of unplanned events.

The Balance Sheet shows the strong stability position as at 30 June 2003 with a 1.56% increase in the value of current assets over current liabilities. Capital expenditure was modest during the year, and it is anticipated that this will remain the same during 2003/2004.
